

Office Smart Employees

Technology has changed the standard operating procedures of the service industry. Clients and customers expect business process to happen in real time. Are your employees still sending documents as email attachments? Or using USB sticks to transfer files? It's time for a refresher on using technology in your workplace. Let us help your organization by bringing your employees at par with what is current in the office world. Our two-day workshops are designed to help your employees be Smart Employees. Participants of the workshops are awarded a certificate and a digital stamp that can be added to their resumes.
